The word δοῦλοι [douloī], often translated “servants,” literally on its sociological background means “slaves,” a word that carries the normally negative ideas of abasement, subservience, and total submissiveness. Slavery was a commonplace feature of the Roman world of the first century and a fact of life seldom questioned or challenged ... There was no autonomy for the slave. His own will was totally subject to the will of another, so that he was a person with “no right of personal choice” (R. Rengstorf, Kittel 2:261). The service he provided was not voluntary but forced. He was totally in bondage to the claims of his master. He had no rights and no freedoms.

~Hawthorne, *Philippians

Rom. 6:16, “Do you not know that to whom you present yourselves slaves to obey, you are that one’s slaves whom you obey, whether of sin leading to death, or of obedience leading to righteousness?”

Rom. 6:17, “But God be thanked that though you were slaves of sin, yet you obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine to which you were delivered.

Rom. 6:18, “And having been set free from sin, you became slaves of righteousness.”

Mark 10:43, “Yet it shall not be so among you; but whoever desires to become great among you shall be your servant [diakonos].

Mark 10:44, “And whoever of you desires to be first shall be slave [doulos] of all.

Mark 10:45, “For even the Son of Man did not come to be served [diakoneo], but to serve [diakoneo], and to give His life a ransom for many.”

1 Cor. 3:23, “And you are Christ’s, and Christ is God’s.”

1 Cor. 7:23, “You were bought at a price; do not become slaves of men.”
